Walking is great for your health and puts a spring in your step. That’s why we set up Walking for Health, an England-wide network to get you walking and get you healthy. We know that getting active can be difficult. But we’re here to help. You can take part in our free short walks near to where you live, at a pace that works for you, and with specially trained leaders showing you the way. It’s a great way to stretch your legs, explore what’s on your doorstep, and make new friends.

For over 12 years, we’ve helped thousands of people like you discover the many benefits of regular group walks. From reducing stress, to losing weight, to sharing laughs, Walking for Health has something for everyone.

The walks themselves are run by all kinds of folk, including local councils, the NHS, charities and voluntary groups, while the network as a whole is managed in partnership by the Ramblers and Macmillan Cancer Support. Together, we’ll support you every step of the way, whether that’s exercising for the first time or discovering new local walks to enjoy again and again.

Anytime, anywhere
Lots of us wish we did more exercise. We know it's good for us. And we know our health's important. But it can be easy to find excuses for not actually getting out there and doing it.

Walking is truly accessible – almost everyone can do it anywhere and at any time. It won't cost you anything, and you don't need any fancy equipment to hit the pavement. Your diary doesn't need to be cleared either, you can just build it into your daily routine by walking to work, school or the shops.

You can take things at your own pace, starting slowly and building up gently. It's wonderfully social too – you can spend quality time with family and friends – and who knows, even make some new ones.

Kit and caboodle
What do you need? Not much really... just a good pair of shoes, which you probably have anyway. Anything that's comfortable, supportive and doesn't give you blisters. You can move more freely in loose-fitting clothing, and it's better to wear several thin layers rather than heavy, bulky clothing.

If you're going to be outdoors for a while, remember to take some water. And don't forget to be prepared for the British weather – if it looks like rain, a waterproof or umbrella will be very handy, and a sun hat and cream are a good idea in summer.

Best foot forward
Think about it... your legs were made for walking. It's a wonderful form of natural exercise that can keep you healthy, living longer – and can even put a smile on your face.

If you still need convincing, here are a few positive things that walking can do for your health...
- Help your heart and lungs work better
- Lower your blood pressure
- Keep your weight down
- Lighten your mood
- Keep your joints, muscles and bones strong
- Increase 'good' cholesterol

Taking regular walks reduces the risk of a number of diseases and medical conditions such as...
- Heart disease
- Type 2 diabetes
- Depression
- Osteoporosis
- Certain cancers

And it can also help you manage your illness and reduce the recurrence of disease, including certain cancers.

Small steps
Doctors recommend that adults should do at least 150 minutes of moderate physical activity a week, and brisk walking is just the job. So, doing the maths... walking for 30 minutes, five days a week will start getting you healthier and burning off some calories.

And you don't have to do all your day's walking in one go... you could, say, walk for ten minutes three times a day. The most important thing is that you take the plunge, commit, and build up gradually.

'Brisk' walking means you breathe a little faster, feel a little warmer, and have a slightly faster heart beat. You should still be able to talk – essential if you're taking a turn with friends.

Walk together
Walking as part of a small group is a good way to start and keep going. You'll make friends, encourage each other, and discover new walks in and around your neighbourhood.

Walking for Health is a network of 600 health walk schemes in towns and villages across England, with regular short walks each week. Anyone can turn up and join in – it's free, fun and friendly.

What you can expect:
- Short walks for beginners
- Trained walk leaders
- Good company
- Safe routes to walk
